Second degree conditional examples worksheets answer keys

Get the perfect English Grammar with our courses. When they have done this, students write second conditional questions using verbs of sentences, e.g. "If you had a last day at home, what would you do?" Students then use the questions to interview a couple about how they spend their last day at home and write their answers using the third person, for example: "If Emma had one last day at home, she would eat spaghetti. Afterwards, she would inform the class about what she discovered. Finish!! Please allow access to the microphone to look at the top of your web browser. Do you need more practice? First, students complete second conditional sentences about how they spend their last day at home, e.g. "If you had one last day at home, eat a big steak with chips." contents index In this intriguing second conditional activity, students ask and answer questions about how they spend their last day at home if they leave for a day.
